EVER HAVE IT?

If You Have, the Statement of This Barre Citizen Will Interest You.

Ever have a "low-down" pain in the back?

In the "small," right over the hips? That's the home of backache.

It's caused by sick kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Barre people endorse this. Read a case of it:

Mrs. Margaret Reid, 40 Maple Avenue, Barre, Vt., says: "I gave a statement in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills in 1905, and I am glad to confirm it at this time.

For more than three years I was bothered off and on by backaches and at night I would suffer so intensely that I could not sleep. During damp weather I was always worse and although I wore plasters, I obtained only temporary relief.

When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I procured a box at E. A. Brown's drug store. They relieved me in a short time and I continued taking them until the pain in my back was entirely relieved."

For sale by all dealers. Price 60 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

"Yama" as Seen in Barre.

A fair sized audience witnessed "Yama" as presented by Alfred E. Aronson for the Yama company, incorporated, at the opera house last evening. The songs were good and some of the singers.

The scenery was fairly good as well. The plot was absent as is usual in musical comedy, and the chorus was in a hard position trying to make up in volume of sound what it lacked in numbers.

J. Clarence Harvey as "Wally Higgins" got a lot of laughs and the singing of Miss Violet Colby as "Lola" won his share.

Rockwell's New Sunny South Company at Opera House Today.

J. C. Rockwell's new Sunny South company, recognized as one of the strongest, brightest and most capable colored organizations in America, will appear in the Barre opera house, matinee and night, Saturday, April 17th.

The performance is a musical one throughout, brilliantly illuminated with several high-grade singing and dancing specialties of the better class, that will make the audience sit up, look and listen.

As a colored organization, this attraction has made a splendid reputation during the past ten years and each season its popularity increases. The company is one of the largest of its kind, being composed of twenty-five colored people, each and every one an expert in specialty work, whose only occupation is to make the audience laugh. From the rise to the fall of the curtain, there is not a dull moment, something is going on all the time. There is every ingredient of gaiety and melody and the Opera presents a strong array of vaudeville equalled by few and surpassed by none.

The organization is accompanied by a high-class solo concert band and a superb orchestra. The band will lead the Kool town parade, which takes place at noon.

What to Eat in Spring.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson in the April Moman's Home Companion tells a great many things about food, what to eat, and when to eat it, that most of us never knew before, and he tells it in a most interesting way.

"It is in the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, but thoughts of love, but heavily armed with the dull monotony of corned beef, cabbage and potatoes. Our clogged palates begin to yearn for the clean sharp acidity of 'pie plant,' the crisp, bitter freshness of 'spring greens.'"

"But, alas, with the longing nature does not always provide the means of its gratification. To the careful housekeeper in her marketing spring, not winter, is the peculiar 'season of her discontent' 'The flowers that bloom, etc.' are lovely to the eye and cheer to the spirit but they furnish exceedingly few ingredients for entrees, desserts, or even salads."

"They're very poetic, but you can't eat 'em. They stir up longings for sourness and freshness and things that 'crunch' between the teeth in April, but the substance of these things hoped for, the 'garden sass' and berries, don't come in satisfactory amounts until June."

And then Dr. Hutchinson goes on and gives a complete springtime menu for every meal for the entire week. It is not an elaborate menu, but it is a most appetizing one.

THE NATURE OF FOWLS.

Should Not Be Left in Wild State—Must Be Kept Hasting.

The natural condition of wild birds is a thing that cannot be exactly suited to fowls on the farm and poultry ranches. The wild bird is fixed in its habits and many of them are the same today as they were centuries ago. They can exist under circumstances which would prove quite detrimental to the domesticated fowls.

The domestic birds have been bred with the aid of man, and they still look to him for help and cannot exist without him unless they are allowed miles of foraging space the same as the wild birds say the Mirror and Farmer. The wild birds are, they have much greater powers of locomotion, and also select their own mates, thus allowing them to use their natural instinct of raising a brood. The domestic fowl has to eat what is placed before him, sleep wherever his owner may direct, and is not allowed to choose his mates.

The domestication of animals and birds has compelled man to adopt methods in caring for them differing from those when the fowls are free. Natural condition depends upon circumstance. It may be natural for poultry to be exposed in summer, but the same rule does not follow for the winter. It is natural for fowls to be kept housed up in winter, but it does not follow that they must be shut in a close, airy place during the summer nights. There are conditions for the different seasons of the year and conditions for the different breeds of fowls. The purpose for which a flock is being raised has also a great deal to do with their feed, but not especially with their care.

The common fowl needs as much attention and care as the choicest bird on the market. In order to get the best results. In the wild state many birds change their feeding ground with the seasons of the year, but the domestic birds are creatures of man and must be governed accordingly. The open air, plenty of sunlight, freedom and drafts, proper kind and quantity of food, a good scratch, a clean, variety of food, cleanliness of quarters, good fresh water, and a chance to do for themselves are the natural conditions for a flock. The wild birds work for their food, and that is three-quarters of the secret. They also have variety and more animal matter than grain. They keep "bustling" and are never overfed, thus the season they keep in such good health and are so prolific. Give the birds a chance to work and they will thrive.
